

I never want to hear that television programing is just giving people what they want or responding to market forces.

Sinclair's decision to require affiliates to slime Kerry by airing "Stolen Honor" is clearly the owner's attempt to manipulate teh public rather than to serve them.

I have not encountered a better argument for diversifying rather than concentrating media.